VOPED Selects Leesburg Today For Launch of iPhone Application

Lansdowne-based VOPED has selected the Leesburg Today Web site to launch its new iPhone application that will allow online readers to quickly access the newspaper’s video content and a RSS feed of the top news stories in Loudoun.

Founded in 2007, VOPED has grown into a national online video platform company. Its new iPhone app is designed to be a multipurpose solution for online media companies, non-profit organizations, university Web sites and other online content publishers. Along with enabling online publishers to distribute video on the iPhone, the app will create a new mobile opportunity for Web sites to distribute online RSS news feeds while simultaneously delivering banner ads through the VOPED ad platform.

“We are pleased to select Leesburg Today for the launch of this new mobile video application. It offers a great way for iPhone users to access free local video news and stay up to the minute with what’s happening in Loudoun County. I have it on my iPhone now,” VOPED Founder and President Mark Serrano said in announcing the new service.

The app can be downloaded for free at Apple’s iTunes store. You can follow a link from the Leesburg Today Web page, www.leesburgtoday.com.
